GOOD RAIN AT M'ALESTER

Farmers Lose Worried Look as Big Downpour Saves Cotton Crop.

M'ALESTER, Okla., July 18.—Coming on the heels of a dry spell that was beginning to cause worried looks among the farmers, a rain which measured from one inch, in Tulsa reports received here this afternoon, proved a life saver to the cotton and means the addition of thousands of bushels of corn to the crops over the county, according to reports received here this afternoon. This was the first early July rain in this county, since 1916 and means, in addition to the benefit to cotton and corn, a bumper crop of vegetables for this part of the country.
